The Prez Sez by Glenn Miller

It's that time of year when we start to focus on our annual auction which is coming up on Wednesday, October 22nd at the Irving Grange, 1011 Irvington Dr. in Eugene (Santa Clara). Our auction committee met again last week to plan and strategize for this event. If you haven't already, you'll be receiving a call from someone on the committee to give you information on this event and asking for donations. We'll also be providing an invitation sometime this month which you can fill out and return so we can get an accurate meal count for the dinner. The auction is always a very fun night and the earnings from this event are the main source of revenue that funds our club throughout the year. Marv Clemons is once again spearheading this event with help from a lot of club members so I can already predict that it will be a success!

We had a great time at our annual August picnic at the Overall's. Once again, Michelle and Steve were wonderful hosts. A BIG thank you goes to the following: Michelle for organizing the event (planning and buying the food, drinks, supplies, set-up, etc.); Steve Overall and Dave Prindel for cooking the burgers and hot dogs; Marv Clemons for running the casting contest; Trese Slocum for helping setup and breakdown (from start to finish); to all of the above (and a few others I probably missed) for helping cleanup; and finally to everyone who attended and brought delicious side dishes. The weather was perfect and it was a well attended, great night!

The days are getting shorter, the night temperatures are dropping, and I'm confident the fish will start to become more active. I've already heard a couple of good fishing reports to support this. After not doing much fishing in August, I'm planning to take a few trips in September and October to hopefully catch a few fish and also enjoy the cooler weather and fall colors. It's my favorite time of the year!

I'm looking forward to hearing our fabulous Program Chair, Michael T. Williams, give his Hosmer Lake program at the September general meeting. You won't want to miss it!

Glenn Miller

September's Presentation

This month Cascade Family Fly Fishers will host CFF Member Michael T. Williams, on September 24th, for a program called "The History & Mystery of Hosmer Lake, Then and Now."

Step back in "time" to 1963. Kenya was achieving independence, The Beatles were on their way to immortality, The World's Fair was in Seattle, WA and Oregon's Hosmer Lake was beginning its emergence as a North American fly fishing destination.

Reading a brief article in the Springfield (OR) News that called attention to landlocked Atlantic Salmon hitting flies, Williams made his first visit to Hosmer, then officially named, Mud Lake, in June of 1963.

Atlantic salmon from Gaspé Bay, Quebec's wild, sea-run stock, reared at Wizard Falls Hatchery on the Metolius River, were now patrolling Hosmer's shallow waters. Hosmer had been built and fly fishers were coming, and returning, loving the sights of leaping fish and screaming fly reels. Hosmer Lake was being discovered.

Imagine this, upon Williams first Hosmer visit, he was 19, owned one fly rod and one Herter's fly tying vise. Imagine this, sight dry fly fishing to jumping, reel screaming Atlantics! Imagine this, until 1965, when Mud Lake officially became Hosmer Lake, crowds were unknown and 40 fish days were common! Fast forward to 2013. With the dramatic decline of Hosmer's salmon health, ODFW chose to stock wild strains of Cutthroat and Rainbow trout instead of salmon.

Sometimes "change" seems difficult to accept. Williams doesn't have answers as to why "wild stock sea-run salmon eggs" were discontinued. Williams believes however that Hosmer Lake could, once again, be a Mecca for sighting and fighting gorgeous fish. This time, in addition to the hefty Brook trout---Cutthroats that pull and Rainbows that jump!

Come on down to The Steelhead Brewery & Cafe, corner of East 5th & Pearl Streets, for our no-host pre-meeting dinner at 5:00.

Michael T Williams, CFF Program Chair

Conservation Corner

Our next work party at Delta Ponds will be on October 18th, 9:00 am- 12:00 pm. We will be doing a lot of cleanup and getting the plants ready for winter.

Summer on the River

By Randy Beard

Winter is for tying flies, building rods, maintaining gear, and planning trips, but once spring arrives, there is no place I would rather be than on the river. It doesn't matter if I'm in the drift boat, the raft, or just walking the bank.

After 40 plus years fly fishing, I enjoy taking people down the river and helping them learn about fishing, as much as fishing myself. This season I was able to take lots of friends on several different adventures. The spring was spent in the drift boat on the lower McKenzie. I took several members of the fly fishing club I belong to, down the river. Some caught fish with flies they had tied, some with rods they had built. We even cooked Easter dinner on the river. I think best of all was seeing the smile on my grandson's face when he caught his first fish.

Once June arrived and things warmed up a bit. I took the raft down the wild and scenic section of the Grande Ronde River for a three day float. There were 9 people and four rafts in our group. What a beautiful place, we saw more mountain goats than people. We pulled off the Grande Ronde and headed straight to the John Day River for a 4 day float. More small mouth bass than anyone needs to catch, too much fun. Rafting isn't just whitewater and fishing. The camping, food, and friends round out the adventure.

July was time to head to Montana to do some serious fly fishing. My son-in-law Timm Wagner and I spent a week fishing the Bitterroot River. We fished all day while floating 10 to 20 miles on our 9' pontoon boats. There is nothing better than catching a wild Montana trout on a size 16 dry fly. Timm took this picture of a nice 18" cutthroat just before he surrendered his iPhone to the river gods (OUCH).

August was spent on the upper McKenzie hitting as much whitewater as I could. I have been trying to get as much time on the oars as I can, in preparation for a 16 day float down the Colorado River next June. I invited Matt Bosch to go "fishing", I forgot to tell him he "might" get wet. He was able to take some nice stocker rainbows home for a barbecue. (Native fish always get released)

Finally, September will bring a five day trip down the wild and scenic section of the Rouge River. I hope to be dodging rocks through Blossom Bar Rapid as you are reading this.

My Felt-soled Ramblin' Shoes

By Pete Szekely

Badly in need of a break from the rigors of a cross-country drive, I pulled off I-90 at the little town of Big Timber, Montana. Though barely past noon, the pavement appeared to shimmer in the heat of a sunny, late July day..... A working air conditioner would top the list of prerequisites for tonight's motel room.

The idea for a stop in BT had germinated months before, upon reading a national magazine's article about the Boulder River. Though I don't remember many details of that article, I remembered thinking that the Boulder had seemed like 'my kind of trout stream.'

Arising high in the Absaroka Mountains that form the northern Yellowstone Park massif, the Boulder River flows north some 40 miles, before joining the Yellowstone River at Big Timber. A medium sized, high gradient, freestone river, the Boulder is a little off the typical fly angler's beaten path and not easily floated, so it doesn't get as much attention as do its bigger more gentle-flowing cousins.

That's just fine with me. Standing knee deep in the Madison waiting to place a cast amongst the cavalcade of drift-boats endlessly descending, is not my idea of fun.

I'll take a 'walk-in' fishery, where, if you're willing to hike you can cast over fish that haven't seen this year's 'hot fly-pattern' twenty times already that day.

The Boulder River comes by its name honestly. Most stretches I explored were so fast and rocky, that a hard-sided drift-boat isn't an option. But the lower quarter is rafted early in the season by local outfitters. Not a river to trifle with, the Boulder demands the full attention of even experienced oarsmen. To fish this lower stretch, hiring a guide, is pretty much the only option. Private ranchland dominates both banks of the lower Boulder except for a small BT town park and a state access point on the east bank called Big Rock.

Taking highway 298 south from BT near milepost 23 the road turns to gravel as it enters the Gallatin National Forest and the stream access picture becomes a lot friendlier. A generous handful of forest service campgrounds, plus trailhead parking lots and angler pull-outs, provide plenty of river access.

But the Boulder River is far from the only game in town. Locals I spoke with mentioned several nearby creeks that 'fished well' early in the season and in good snow pack years, including Big Timber Creek and Otter Creek.

The Yellowstone River is the longest free flowing river in the country. As it flows past BT it is comparable in size, I'd say, to the Willamette at Harrisburg. Throughout its length the Yellowstone is a wonderfully productive river and the stretch near BT is no exception. On the north bank, some six miles upstream from BT, the Grey Bear public access has a fee campground but the boat ramp and parking are free. McKenzie style drift-boats would work just fine here, though the 'low profile' sorts predominate, as it's often quite windy.

While I was checking out the scene at Grey Bear a couple anglers floated past on 'one-man' pontoon boats. Each had ingeniously rigged his craft, one with an awning the other with a jumbo golf umbrella, to protect themselves from the scorching sun. Needless to say they were 'gear' fishermen....neither set-up would be compatible with the fly casting stroke. We'll just have to be satisfied with broad-brimmed hats.

Auction Trip with Michelle Overall

By Roz Kauffman

This year's auction is almost here and I'm still smiling from the trip I bid on last year and recently cashed in.

Michelle Overall donated the fishing trip and lite lunch on the McKenzie River, the lunch was delicious, fresh and served with style on the banks of the McKenzie. The fishing wasn't as hot as the weather, but Michelle was very patient with my uncanny ability to put my fly in a tree just as we passed over good fishing spots. We both caught fish, just not the numbers we hoped for. We put in at Finn Rock and took out at Silver Creek Landing which is a beautiful stretch with some small rapids that kept me cool and Michelle entertained. We floated through one nice hole and Michelle told me that she caught a very large trout right on this spot, I think she said it was the largest trout she ever caught on the McKenzie, just then my line stopped and I told Michelle I was hung up, we were moving fast and I struggled to get my line undone when the fish in the picture above jumped out of the water totally taking me by surprise. I had a wonderful time on my auction trip, the day rushed by like the river, leaving me wanting more.

Alas, my time in BT was limited, but even from my brief stay I've put BT and the surrounding country, high on my list of fly-fishing destinations needing my further exploration. And for non-fishing I-90 road warriors Big Timber has a surprising array of services for such a small town. There are three or four motels, as many restaurants, gas stations, a medium sized grocery store and even a small fly-shop (Sweet Casts).

So if you're traveling I-90 and day's end finds you near Big Timber, I highly recommend you give it a look. And unpacking your fly rod may prove well worth the effort.

CFF Library News

Our first regular meeting will be held later this month and most of you haven't had the opportunity to return any library materials the last couple of months. I'm asking all of you to check and see if you have any DVD's or books and to return them to me at the next meeting. This will ensure other members will have a chance to use the items. It's been a great summer and I'm looking forward to seeing all of you at the meeting.

Coast Lake Outing

Saturday, September 27th, 2014

Marv Clemons, Host 541/688-8774

The lakes are cooling and the coastal lakes were stocked for the Labor Day weekend and should have plenty of holdover trout for the taking.

There are plenty of warm water fish like yellow perch, largemouth bass, crappie, bullhead, and bluegill available for those who wish to fish for them, all of which are excellent eating.

We will meet in the Honeyman Park parking lot just south of Cleawox Lake about a mile south of Florence to the right at the intersection of Hwy 101 and Canary Road between 7:30 and 8:00 Saturday morning. At that time we will assess the water craft available, assure all have a seat if they did not bring their own craft, select the lakes each person wants to fish, discuss gear, flies, and fishing strategies, and set a time to return to the parking lot around noon for some lunch, bragging and selecting an alternative lake for the afternoon. We will also select a time to meet at days end usually around 5:00 as it should be dark by that time.

These coastal lakes are pretty deep up to 65 feet in Woahink and 70 feet in Munsel. You may wish to bring an ultra-light spinning outfit especially if you plan to bring your kids so they can get their bait to the bottom. With a weighted fly, long leader and a sink-tip line you will be able to get your files down also. Some sort of water craft is usually needed, boat, kayak, float tube, pontoon boat or a standup paddle board as wading is not an option in most of these lakes. Lake options include, Siltcoos, Tahkenitch, Wohink, Munsel, Sutton, Cleawox, Alder, Dune, Elbow and many others. I will have maps available if you are unfamiliar with the location of these lakes.

These lakes are stocked with rainbow trout and all have healthy populations of the warm water fish listed above. The flies recommended here will usually take the warm water fish also. These include black, brown, and olive wooly Buggers sizes 8-10; olive caddis nymphs size 8 - 14; March Brown, Adam, and soft hackle, orange and green body's 12 - 16 dry and wet, black or purple mid-night fire buggers and leeches size 4 - 8 and don't forget the poppers for the bass. An 8.5' or 9.0' rod will work well along with a dry line, and a sink tip or full sinking line 4 to 6# tippets work well also. Most of your fishing will be within 50' of the shoreline.

Sign-up sheets will be available at the September 24th General CFF meeting at the Vet's Club, or please give me a call at 541-688-8774 and let me know if you will be coming. Let me know also if you would like to come but need a ride. We will do our best to hook you up with one.

This is a great trip to wind up the 2014 outings schedule for the club. Hope to see you all there.
